Textile and Clothing
Industry in LATVIA
The textile and clothing sector is a cornerstone of Latvian industry, with deep roots in our culture. In the past, Latvia was one of the world’s biggest manufacturers of flax. These textile traditions have developed over time, and today we see a sector that is well-equipped with the latest technology and knowhow.

Latvia has in fact become a place where many well-known European, Russian and global brands place their production for smaller orders that need fast turnaround, or that give preference to environmentally sound production. High quality and service-mindedness stand out as key reasons for doing business in Latvia.

In 2015, the textile industry contributed 3.4% to the total manufacturing output of Latvia, reaching a turnover of EUR 248 million. Traditionally, it is also a highly export-oriented sector, with 70-80% of output reaching foreign customers.

It should be noted that Latvia also holds a position as a major lingerie-manufacturing centre in Eastern Europe, with more than 50 producers located in the coastal city of Liepaja alone. Only France possesses a higher concentration of lingerie companies.

Traditional knowledge and new technological skills are now being actively explored in the high-potential natural fibre segment where Latvia has a competitive advantage on the basis of our history, culture, and mind-set.

This catalogue presents information on the most important companies operating in the sector. I am confident it will be of great value for creating new business connections with potential suppliers, distributors, designers, and companies seeking production facilities in the EU. The Investment and Development Agency of Latvia will be glad to assist you in locating appropriate partners and establishing mutually beneficial relationships.

Andris Ozols
Director
Investment and Development Agency of Latvia
For centuries, the textile and clothing sector has been one of the most important in the Latvian economy. It has very culturally significant roots, mostly associated with natural materials, high quality, and a true-to-nature lifestyle and values. Even in medieval times, textile products were important export commodities in the context of the Hanseatic League and later.

In the last century, Latvia was one of the most renowned flax and hemp exporters, with almost 70,000 ha of land devoted to the cultivation of these plants. Flax was Latvia's second most important income source after timber. Latvian flax and hemp were associated with the highest standards of the time, as innovative and thorough control methods were used to ensure the highest quality of these fibres.

Linen is still an integral part of the Latvian textile industry, also contributing to niche products such as linen ropes or linen for technical uses. Hemp is also regaining its status through the introduction of new insulating and other technical textile materials.

TEXTILE INDUSTRY AT A GLANCE

While home textiles from linen, such as tablecloths and curtains, are very popular among the local population, the most exclusive linen accessories have been noticed by well-known international brands and are now part of their collections.

Today, the textile sector is an important part of Latvian industry, combining the best of traditional knowhow with industrial and technological knowledge. This expertise has led to the creation of high value-added products such as silver and amber threads.

Around 11,000 people are employed in more than 1,800 Latvian textile companies, mostly small and medium in size. In 2015 the sector's contribution to total manufacturing output is 3.4%. The capital city of Riga takes the lead as far as the workforce is concerned, followed by the city of Liepaja. However, textile companies are distributed all around Latvia, unleashing the creativity and inspiration of our people.

The main textile industry sub-sectors are lingerie manufacturing, sewing, weaving, technical textile manufacturing and artisan textile production. The industry is highly export-oriented, particularly the lingerie segment.

Exports by Subsector in 2015

The competitive advantages for cooperation with Latvian textile companies are numerous, including short lead times, small and diversified production volumes, as well as the price/quality ratio. Reliability and long-term, mutually beneficial partnerships have allowed the sector to maintain its positions in what is currently a highly volatile market.

The industry is dominated by sewing companies that act as outsourced production facilities for EU brands. This is very convenient, as production and delivery times are short and technical capabilities are advanced – from embroidery and laser cutting to waterproof-garment production. Latvian sewing companies provide customized services, including pattern and other design services.

However, there are also a number of local small- and medium-size companies that create their own collections in jersey, knitwear and other materials, pioneering natural and ecological clothing concepts. Similar philosophies and lifestyle attitudes can be found in the workshops of Latvia’s numerous home textile companies – from small to large.

Many world-renowned automotive and airspace companies have benefited from Latvia’s competence in glass fibre production. In this field, Latvia has several highly innovative companies with great potential for further expansion.

Every year, local small and medium-sized enterprises present new adult and children’s fashion collections, as well as one’s in home textile design, all of which are admired by customers around the globe. Latvian fashion designers are gaining more and more international recognition through active participation in prestigious competitions from Paris to Tokyo, as well as by attending numerous design-clothing trade fairs.

Another integral part of textile production in Latvia is lingerie manufacturing. This is a very distinguishing feature, especially in the port city of Liepaja, which alone hosts more than 50 manufacturers. Their creativity and sense of feminine beauty can be appreciated in many international fairs across Europe and Russia as well as in annual international Lingerie Industry Forum in Latvia. Latvian lingerie manufacturers have won several contests for representing the best fashion trends in this industry. The considerable number of lingerie companies in Latvia is worthy of mention; elsewhere in Europe, only France has a higher concentration of lingerie manufacturers.

There are two associations uniting Latvian textile producers: the Association of the Latvian Textile and Clothing Industry and the Association of Latvian Lingerie Manufacturers (LATVERA). The industry is also supported by several education institutions, the Textiles Faculty of Riga Technical University, as well as several vocational education institutions, Vocational Institutes and designers, leading to creative products addressing new customer needs. Being well-established, the sector continuously attracts new investment to upgrade existing production facilities and establish new ones.

TEXTILE INDUSTRY STATISTICS

Without a doubt, the major market for Latvian textile goods is the EU, where our most important partners are the Baltic and Scandinavian countries. However, with every passing year, our eastern partners – Russia, Ukraine, and Belarus – have been expanding their contribution to the sector’s turnover.

The textile products exported to the west are mostly under private labels. The outsourcing of textile production in Latvia is an integral part of the business. At the same time, exports to Russia and the CIS mostly feature locally designed fashion and lingerie collections, which have an esteemed reputation and appeal to highly demanding clientele.

Obsessed with quality, our producers acquire only the best raw materials imported mainly from Italy, Poland, Germany and Lithuania. These are later transformed into ready-made garments and other textile articles. The latest trends also show the willingness and ability of Latvian companies to acquire manufacturing plants in the EU. Export markets have grown steadily, expanding to 140 countries.

The sector has seen significant investment in technology and equipment. Textile and garment companies continuously upgrade and replace their equipment so as to be more productive, cost-effective and thereby competitive.

The Latvian domestic market is small but steady, and provides an innovative platform from which our producers can launch into foreign markets. Latvia is a bridge that connects east with west – this is one of country’s greatest strengths and certainly contributes to the continued growth of the textile sector.
