September 15, 2011: Committee on Increasing of Competitiveness in the Economy submits interim recommendations.

(Communicated by the Ministry of Finance)

Minister of Finance and PM Netanyahu receives interim conclusions of Committee on Increasing Competitiveness (Photo: GPO)

The Committee on Increasing of Competitiveness in the Economy that was appointed by the Prime Minister, the Minister of Finance and the Governor of the Bank of Israel has concluded the interim stage of the formulation of its recommendations.

Prime Minister Netanyahu said: "The committee did thorough and professional work in both studying the subject and giving real solutions. The committee's conclusions will lead to substantive changes in the Israeli economy and to the cancellation of the situation that has prevailed for decades, of involvement and major control by a few groups."

The Committee had been requested to examine the effect of the existing structure of the economy on the level of competition in the various sectors of the economy, on its financial stability and on its economic efficiency. The Committee has been asked to recommend advisable policy measures with emphasis on the issue of the control of real companies over financial companies, the issue of the control of a public company using a pyramid holding structure and the manner of the allocation of public assets. Based on this mandate, three work teams were appointed to review each of the said issues.

September 27, 2011: Bank of Israel reduces interest rate for October 2011 to 3%.

(Communicated by the Bank of Israel)

The main considerations behind the decision:

The decision to reduce the interest rate for October to 3% is based mainly on the negative turnaround in the global economy, is consistent with the return of inflation to within the target range of price stability, and is intended to support growth while preserving financial stability.

- Assessments have firmed recently that the slowdown in global growth will be steeper than previously expected. The IMF reduced its forecast of US growth in 2012 from 2.7% to 1.8%, and growth in the eurozone from 1.7% to 1.1% and it is assessed that the balance of risks is negative.
- The weakness of the US and European economies led policymakers in those countries to adopt more expansionary measures (Operation Twist in the US, and other steps in the eurozone to increase liquidity).

There are now market expectations of a cut in the ECB interest rate. In addition, volatility has increased on capital markets around the world, and the downward trend in prices of financial assets continues.

- The more severe global slowdown is reflected in a slowdown in the growth of real activity in Israel, and in particular in the weakness of goods exports. The Bank of Israel has lowered its growth forecast for 2012 from 3.9% to 3.2%, and in the Israeli economy too the balance of risks is to the downside.
- Inflation expectations for the next 12 months as calculated from the capital market have remained stable this month around the midpoint of the 1-3% target range, and those of the forecasters continued to decline towards the midpoint of the inflation target range, and are currently 2.3%. The cumulative change in the last 6 monthly CPI readings, seasonally adjusted, is consistent with the target inflation range. Nevertheless, inflation over the previous twelve months, 3.4%, is still above the target range. The Bank of Israel's staff forecast and professional forecasters' expectations of the inflation rate over the previous twelve months at the end of 2011/beginning of 2012 are within the target range.
- The rate of increase in house prices in the last 12 months continues to be high, but in the last few months some moderation has been evident, and in the 12 months to July the rate was 12.3% (compared with 12.5% to June). The effects of the measures taken by the Bank of Israel with regard to mortgages, changes in real estate taxation introduced by the Ministry of Finance, and the sustained increase in building starts are expected to continue to contribute to this moderation in the coming year.

The Bank of Israel notes the strength of the Israeli economy, which is reflected in the high levels of growth and employment to date, the robust domestic banking system, the high level of foreign currency reserves, the downward trend in the government debt burden, and in Israel's raised credit rating. The cut in the interest rate for October is intended to minimize the negative effect on Israel's economy of the slowdown in activity and the increased level of uncertainty in the global economy.

The Bank of Israel will continue to monitor developments in Israel's economy and the global economy and in the financial markets. The Bank will use the instruments available to it to achieve its objectives of price stability, the encouragement of employment and growth, and support for the stability of the financial system, including keeping a close watch on developments in the assets market, and especially in the housing market.

The Bank of Israel Research Department staff forecast

The Research Department staff forecast was updated in September. The current assessment is that inflation in the four quarters ending in the third quarter of 2012 will be 2.3%, and the average interest rate for that quarter will be 3%. For the full year of 2011, the Research Department forecasts that the inflation rate will be at the upper limit of the target range, and that the average interest rate in the fourth quarter will be 3.25%. GDP growth forecasts for 2011 and 2012 were revised lower. The current forecast is for 4.7% growth in 2011 (down from 4.8% in the previous forecast) and 3.2% in 2012 (down from 3.9% in the previous forecast). The assessment was based on, among other things, a lowered International Monetary Fund (IMF) forecast for global growth and world trade. The Research Department emphasized the primary risks faced by Israel's economy, specifically, the risk of a global slowdown and geopolitical risks that could have economic consequences.

September 19, 2011: Israel's International Investment Position (IIP), June 2011.

(Communicated by the Bank of Israel)

- Israel's assets abroad grew by about $5 billion (about 2%) in the second quarter of 2011, to $266 billion. This was due mainly to increased deposits abroad by Israeli banks, and an increase in the Bank of Israel foreign exchange reserves.
- The balance of liabilities to abroad increased by about $3.3 billion (1.3%) in the second quarter of 2011, and reached about $261 billion at the end of June. Most of the increase was due to an increase in foreign banks' deposits at banks in Israel and an increase in nonresidents' investments in Israeli shares.
- These developments in Israel's IIP increased the net surplus of assets abroad by about $1.6 billion, in a continuation of the trend in the first quarter of 2011.
- The surplus of assets over liabilities in debt instruments alone increased in the second quarter of 2011 by about $2 billion, and reached about $60 billion (a negative net external debt).

September 12, 2011: S&P upgraded Israel's credit rating to A+
(Communicated by the Ministry of Finance)

Standard & Poor's Ratings Services (S&P) raised its long-term foreign currency sovereign credit ratings on the State of Israel to 'A+/A-1' from 'A/A-1'. At the same time, S&P affirmed the local currency ratings at 'AA-/A-1+'. Also, S&P's outlook is stable, and the transfer and convertibility (T&C) assessment remains at 'AA'.

The rating action reflects S&P view of Israel's improved economic policy flexibility as a result of strong growth and careful macroeconomic management.

Comments by Ministry of Finance officials:

Minister of Finance, Dr. Yuval Steinitz, noted that "this is an impressive credit given to the Israeli economy and its successful coping with the global economic crisis. This achievement of credit upgrade is especially unique given the debt and massive unemployment crisis, which hurt many economies' credit rating." Minister Steinitz also noted that "the fact that S&P mentioned the latest natural gas findings as a point of strength for the Israeli economy indicated the importance of the work done by the Committee to Examine the Fiscal Policy on Oil and Gas Resources in Israel, Headed by Prof. Eytan Sheshinski." The minister added that "Israel cannot rest on its laurels, as the on-going global crisis demands us to keep our budget frameworks and economic policies.

The Accountant General in the Ministry of Finance, Ms. Michal Abadi-Boiangiu, noted that "the announcement by S&P in such times, when the world is confronting a deep global economic crisis, testifies on the strength of the Israeli economy and reinforces the importance of reducing Israel's public debt.

September 7, 2011: Israel ranked 22nd in Global Competitiveness Report.
(Communicated by the Ministry of Finance)

Israel climbed two ranks from the previous Global Competitiveness Report of 2010-2011, from 24th to 22nd.

According to the Global Competitiveness Report \(GCR\) for 2011-2012 published by the World Economic Forum's Centre for Global Competitiveness and Performance, Israel's main strengths remain its "world-class" capacity for innovation, derived from the presence of "the world's best research institutions" and their collaborations with the business sector, and the high number of patents. Also, the report mentions Israel's favorable financial environment, particularly the solid availability of venture capital, which has "further contributed to making Israel an innovation powerhouse". According to the report, these elements have become stronger in the past year.

The report notes that increased budgetary discipline with a view to reducing debt levels would help the country maintain stability and support economic growth going into the future.

Israel's main advantages according to the current report are:

1. Quality of scientific research institutions
2. Venture capital availability
3. Utility patents per million population
4. Life expectancy
5. Strength of investor protection

6. Government procurement of advanced tech product
7. Capacity for innovation
8. Firm-level technology absorption
9. University-industry collaboration in R&D
10. Company spending on R&D
11. Nature of competitive advantage
12. Legal rights index
13. Availability of scientists and engineers

Making biofuel sugar from wood.
(Israeli MFA, by Rivka Borochoy)

The Israeli company HCL Clean Tech is looking to convert wood chips into a high-value feedstock for biofuels and the plastics and chemicals industries.

HCL Clean Tech CEO Eran Baniel

Israeli company HCL Clean Tech has found a way to turn the cellulose fibers in wood into a sugar that can be converted to ethanol or another biofuel. The cost of this wood-based sugar is 17% less than the cost of corn mill sugars of roughly the same quality, and using wood chips from harvested softwood and hardwood trees, as well as from wood waste, does not compete with food sources.

Invigorating a 'lumbering' industry

Sugar is energy, no matter how it's derived, explains Eran Baniel, the managing director of the company based in Herzliya, Israel, and North Carolina. Beyond fuel, HCL Clean Tech taps into a unique caveat. He explains: "What makes it interesting is that our feedstock can be used for food and feed. It can be used for food fermentation and put into food additives, then used for feed - in the form of additives for meat and other food productions. We've turned the table on the industry... We take wood waste and can turn it into food materials."

HCL's sugars have shown a very encouraging flexibility, Baniel adds.

Why wood? The corn sugar market is unstable and volatile, he explains. Feedstock from wood introduces an alternative, especially in a faltering wood industry where trees were previously used by paper mills now sitting dormant.

The US Department of Energy is on board with the HCL idea and has invested a $9 million grant in the project. To date, the company has raised $15.5 million in three rounds, and is about to announce a new investment and commercial plant launch in the United States.

Technique could be applied to other materials

HCL Clean Tech has 27 employees in the Israel and US locations, with the majority working in research and development. All financing to date has been done by investors on the inside. Out of $15.5 million raised, 92% has been used in R&D.

Though wood chips have proven to be an excellent source of sugar, the company's technology theoretically can work with any cellulosic material, says Baniel. "We use low-quality wood and turn it into sugars of very high quality and waste. We can also use bagasse - what's left over when you have extracted the sugars from the sugarcane. Essentially we can work with any agriculture waste," he says, stressing that wood was simply a good starting place.

Nazareth high-tech incubator provides platform for Arab startups.
(Israeli MFA, by Yehuda Tzion)

NGT CEO Nasri Said at the Biomed Conference in Tel Aviv earlier this year

New Generation Technology, founded by Jewish and Arab entrepreneurs to develop ideas by Arab-Israeli scientists, utilizes the vast knowledge that the Israeli-Arab community has amassed in life sciences.

When it was first established back in 2002, there were many doubters who said that an Israeli high-tech incubator founded by Jewish and Arab entrepreneurs to develop ideas by Arab-Israeli scientists would never work.

Almost 10 years later, the New Generation Technology (NGT) incubator in Nazareth is not only still on its feet, but is thriving, with 20 startup companies in various stages of development. "We've succeeded in providing Arab entrepreneurs with a platform to turn their ideas into businesses and it's become known throughout the Israeli-Arab sector that such an opportunity exists. I think that's been our biggest accomplishment," says Nizar Mishael, the chief financial officer of NGT since 2006.

Originally founded by five leading Israeli-Arab business people and Israeli-American investor Davidi Gilo, NGT under its longtime CEO Nasri Said continues to operate on a combination of private and government funding, receiving an annual budget from the Chief Scientist's Office of the Industry, Trade & Labor Ministry. The only incubator of its kind in Israel in that it's a joint Arab-Jewish venture, NGT is housed in a building on the edge of Nazareth's industrial zone, a predominantly Arab city about an hour's drive from Tel Aviv. Next door to NGT are two companies with like-minded agendas - MIT Soft, a high-tech manpower company set up to get around the obstacles facing Israeli Arabs, and Tsofen, a non-profit organization that prepares Arab science graduates for the job market.

Fluorinex Active

One of NGT's big success stories brings a smile to everyone's mouths. That's because the product developed by Fluorinex and its founder Kamal Khwald whitens teeth.

Metallo Therapy

Metallo Therapy is a relatively recent addition to NGT's portfolio, but one of its prime movers. It was founded in 2009 by Dr. Amal Ayoub, a physicist from Ben-Gurion University of the Negev who is believed to be the first female life sciences Arab entrepreneur in Israel. Ayoub developed the company's DNA irradiation cancer therapy, which irradiates cancer tumors with atomic particles as a prelude to radiation therapy.

Nutrinia

One of first companies founded by NGT is still one of its most promising. Nutrinia, established in 2003 by Prof. Naim Shehadeh , a leading researcher in the field of juvenile diabetes and head of the Pediatric Diabetes Clinic at the Rambam Medical Center in Haifa, is developing bioactive food supplements for infant formulas and animal feed based on a novel micro-encapsulation of insulin.

16.08.2011 Couscous - Since 1969

Couscous - Since 1969

According to family legend, it was Phillipe, the smallest member of the Chriqui family that had recently immigrated to Israel from North Africa, who missed his favorite dish and asked for couscous. Phillipe's father, David, went out to buy some and after trying store after store, discovered there was none to be had. Then and there, as the legend goes, David Chriqui decided to establish a factory in Israel that would produce ready-made couscous for quick and easy home preparation... and the rest is history. David opened his first factory in Jaffa, employing local Arab women who hand-rolled the semolina into tiny couscous balls and sun-dried them. This was the traditional method used in North Africa for creating stores of food. Later, David developed machines to do what his workers were doing. He thereby succeeded in saving labor and enhancing hygiene, while making sure to maintain the original quality and authenticity of the final product. This has remained the company's driving motivating right up to the present day. As the company grew, its facilities moved to Ra'anana and Hod Hasharon, where it continued to develop and automate its manufacturing process. In 1993 the plant moved to its current location in Netanya, where further upgrades to all manufacturing lines have made the Couscous Maison manufacturing facility the most advanced of its kind, using the latest food technologies. Every stage in the manufacturing process - from sifting and rolling the semolina, through cooking and drying, to final packaging - is completely automated so that from raw material to finished product it is untouched by the human hand. With product quality and authenticity painstakingly preserved, all manufacturing lines meet the strictest international standards including GMP, HACCP, and ISO 9001-2000.

16.08.2011 City of David

City of David

Rediscover Biblical Jerusalem... The story of the City of David began over 3,000 years ago, when King David left the city of Hebron for a small hilltop city known as Jerusalem, establishing it as the unified capital of the tribes of Israel. Years later, David's son, King Solomon, built the First Temple next to the City of David on top of Mount Moriah, the site of the binding of Isaac, and with it, this hilltop became one of the most important sites in the world. Today, the story of the City of David continues. Deep underground, the City of David is revealing some of the most exciting archeological finds of the ancient world. While above ground, the city is a vibrant center of activity with a visitor's center that welcomes visitors for an exciting tour to the site where much of the Bible was written. The tour of the City of David begins with a breathtaking observation point overlooking Biblical Jerusalem which sends visitors 3,800 years back in time to the days of Abraham, when the first foundations of the city were laid. As one moves through the site, one comes in contact with archaeological excavations and thrilling biblical finds that span thousands of years of history including both First and Second Temple Jerusalem. The tour continues underground to the Gihon Spring, the major water source of Jerusalem for over 1,000 years. Visitors seeking adventure can trek through knee deep water in King Hezekiah's 2,700 year old water tunnel, one of the wonders of early engineering. Continuing to the Shiloah Pool, the major water drawing source in biblical times, one reaches the Herodian Road, the ancient thoroughfare that led pilgrims north to the Temple. We welcome you to come see for yourself the place where it all began.

16.08.2011 Binyamina Winery

	Binyamina Winery Binyamina Winery is the fourth largest winery in Israel and it produces some 2.8 million bottles annually under several labels. These are delivered to specialty wine stores, marketing chains, hotels, catering companies and restaurants in Israel and abroad. The winery currently produces wine under four main labels - The Chosen, Binyamina Reserve, Yogeve and Teva, as well as special limited edition wines and liqueurs. We regard each of our wine labels as reflecting a part of an entire enterprise that strives for and ultimately achieves product perfection. Our Labels: The Chosen - a reflection of our winemaker's creativity. This is Binyamina Winery's high-end label that includes six wines, each named for one of the Hoshen Stones (the biblical term for the carefully chosen precious stones set in the breastplate of the High Priest). During the production process the winemaker meticulously oversees the manual harvesting and sorting of the grapes, production processes that rely on gravitational forces rather than on mechanical processes, and the wine's long aging. Binyamina Reserve - the winery's flagship label which reflects the vineyard and its qualities. This label includes eight red and white varietal wines produced from grapes that grow mainly in our Upper and Lower Galilee vineyards. The unique expression of vineyard qualities is the dominant feature in these wines. Yogeve - Binyamina's Yogeve label is tribute to our winegrowers. In Hebrew, Yogeve means farmer, toiler of the soil. This label reflects the winegrower's contribution to the production of quality wines. Yogeve wines are aged in used barrels in order to preserve the natural qualities of the winegrowers' fruit. As a token of our appreciation, we have included the winegrowers' names on the back labels of all Yogeve wines. Teva - Binyamina's most popular label that we regard as reflecting the consumer. This label includes varietal wines, each attributed with a nature that wine consumers can relate to while we cater to the personal taste of each consumer. Binyamina Winery strives to promote a wine culture in Israel and is regarded as a daring pioneer in the wide range of varieties it offers its customers under its different labels, which include classics from Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot to Shiraz, Chardonnay and Emerald Riesling as well as less known varieties such as Pinotage, Tempranillo and Viognier. There is no doubt that even in the rich and diverse wine world it is important to constantly strive to diversify even further and to offer attractive options to meet developing and increasingly sophisticated consumer tastes. And nobody does it better than Binyamina! Awards &amp; Certifications The Binyamina Reserve Merlot 06 recently won the gold metal CONCOURS SELEZIONE DEL MONDO - Bergamo Italy! We have specialized in red wines, especially varietal wines, and have pioneered the South African varietal Pinotage here in Israel. Since the company's inception in 1990, we have developed new and better varietal vineyards - especially Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot, and have consistently made better wines from them that have time after time achieved impressive results in tastings and competitions both in Israel and abroad. We feel that everyone deserves a good bottle of wine, irregardless of the price they paid for it, irregardless of what occasion or meal they bought it for, and we have designed our wine series accordingly, not just by quality or character, but to fit into the differing life styles and tastes of our customers.	Contact Info ✉ contact@isralexporter.com  📞 972.8.9447772
